What You Need to Know to Re-Enter a Church Building

In the coming weeks, there will be increased opportunities to re-enter the church. Our reopening team already has made available opportunities for private prayer, Reconciliation, Funerals, Weddings, and Baptisms. The return to public Masses is more involved. Here are few key things to know.

- The Archbishop of Chicago has dispensed all Catholics from the obligation to attend Mass during the COVID-19 pandemic
- All attendees who enter the church must have a reservation. A reservation can be made online at www.standrew.org/reopening or by calling the rectory and leaving a message - 773-525-3016
- All attendees who enter the church must wear a mask over their mouth and nose.
- A seat will be selected for you by a Greeter who will lead you to your seat when you arrive at the church.
- Bathrooms in the church are closed except for emergencies

Other precautions are also being taken. A complete list can be found at www.standrew.org/reopening

Pastoral Letter

by Deacon Mark Purdome

"Our Catholic social teachings provide a strong tradition that compels us to be actively engaged in the building up of our communities."

When I was in high school, I loved to chew ice. Don't get me wrong, I still do it, much to the dismay of my dentist, but you'd think I would have learned not to do it after I was tongue-tied. Literally. I was with some friends and I bit my tongue hard enough that it had to be sewn up with stitches to stop the bleeding. For several weeks, my predicament was a joke among my friends, my teachers, and my family.

Lately, I've been thinking about the experience of being tongue-tied and how it plays into the current environment. When I had stitches in my tongue, I was more reluctant to speak because the words didn't sound right, and I was fearful that people would laugh at me. And now, with Black Lives Matter protests peacefully walking our streets, and an ever-deepening awareness that our justice system disproportionately targets people of color, we may have similar feelings - that we don't know what to say or how to say it. However, we seem to be at an "inflection point", an opportunity to change the dialog we have about race, so now is not the moment to remain tongue-tied, to be fearful about the conversation, but to join in. Yes, it is challenging to admit that our social structures are racist. It is easier to believe that the violence we've seen directed against people of color is the result of individual acts of meanness rather than systemic flaws that need to be repaired. But the reality is that racism exists, and as uncomfortable as it may be, now is the time to add our voices to the calls for change.

Our Catholic social teachings provide a strong tradition that compels us to be actively engaged in the building up of our communities. We are one human family whatever our national, racial, ethnic, economic, and ideological differences. We are our brothers and sisters keepers, wherever they may be. And so we must be active participants in bringing about changes that will respect the dignity of all people. We must educate ourselves to overcome the fear and doubt that conversations about race trigger. Speaking up speaks volumes.

Now is not the time to be tongue-tied.

Peace!

Deacon Mark

Learn at Home, for Individuals & Families

Service and Sacrifice

Two major holidays mark the beginning and middle of summer: Memorial Day and Independence Day. While these days might be spent picnicking with family or watching fireworks over the lake, they are meant to be reminders of the service and sacrifice offered on the behalf of our nation. We take time away from our usual schedule but to honor and celebrate those who laid down their lives for others.

In the Catholic church, we celebrate feast days to commemorate saints, martyrs, and special events in the life of the church. These important days are listed in the calendar of the church, and they are ordered by degree of importance. They fall into three categories: solemnities, feasts, and memorials.

When celebrating a solemnity, the church begins with either Vespers (evening prayer) or sometimes a vigil mass. The Gloria and Creed are recited at the mass. For example: Sundays and Holy Days are considered solemnities. The second highest rank is feast days. They do not have an evening celebration (with the exception of our Lord's feast days), and only the Gloria is recited. Finally, memorials are important days to celebrate a saint or group of saints.

Consider taking some time to celebrate and honor these special saints on their special days:

June 29 - Solemnity of Saints Peter and Paul

July 1 - Memorial of Saint Junipero Serra

July 6 - Memorial for Saint Maria Goretti
